
CONSECRATION

1. Consecration: To center attention upon and to work toward an objective. There is a living mind basis from which everything springs and a goal to which everything aims. Everything in the universe portends to and presages the advent of perfection. “Something more noble than the past” always follows former states and conditions. This is evidence in itself that there is a great Mind Intelligence at work in our universe and a pattern behind all outer phenomena.

2. Divine Science is the science that brings to light the truth and underlying substance of all being. Man’s first recognition of this is often spoken of as a “voice” or an inner urge.

And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven: Now is come salvation and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ.

—Rev

12:10

3. Through consecration to the good and the true and the science of its law-of-expression, we find a mighty power and unseen helper and spiritual comforter to be ever working with us.

Daily rededicate and reconsecrate yourself to Truth by thoughtfully affirming and holding the attitudes:

I am a son of God; joint-heir with Jesus Christ to all that the Father is, does, and has,” and “The Spirit of Truth is working with me, in me, through me, and by means of me to establish its peace, power, order, health and plenty in the earth.

—Irwin E.

Gregg

4. “I AM AND BESIDE ME THERE IS NONE ELSE”

I AM: The only One in the universe. The all-inclusive Mind, Soul, Substance and Life. I am Spirit, living soul and body, for the three are one I Am and its manifestation.

—Fannie B.

James

There is only God. There is only one “I,” Man is instructed, “Be still and know that ‘I’ am God.” The Infinite Individual “I” is indestructible, perfect, diseaseless and deathless. “I” is universal and individual.

"I, (the individual) am in the Father (Universal) and the Father (Universal) is in me (the individual), I (the individual) and the Father (Universal) are one, and not two."

—M. H.

Ballard

“I”. . .is the Life that lives us, the Mind that thinks within us, the Power that expresses through us and the Love that is our very nature.
